Criminal Law

Led by W. Michael Dunn, the former chief of the Criminal Division of the New Hampshire Attorney General's Office, Sheehan Phinney's Criminal Law Group defends clients in a wide array of criminal matters. Our attorneys strive to help our clients avoid criminal prosecution through effective and creative plea-bargaining. Our criminal litigators are widely recognized for these capabilities by police departments and prosecutors across the region. When prosecution is unavoidable, however, Sheehan Phinney's criminal trial lawyers approach cases aggressively, knowing that thorough preparation, coupled with a comfort in the criminal courtroom, produces the best results for our clients.

Our Criminal Law Group handles a wide variety of criminal offenses including:

- Murder and negligent homicide
- Cybercrime
- Violation of federal criminal import/export laws including the Customs Act
- Criminal infractions of federal banking and securities laws
- FDA prosecutions
- Criminal violations of corporate and limited liability laws
- Major motor vehicle offenses and violations
- Use of false identification or identity theft
