Scott W. Ellison

Shareholder | Manchester, NH

Scott was a member of the firm Cook Little before joining Sheehan Phinney's Corporate Group. His clients rely on his advice and experience for business, commercial and corporate law matters, and merger and acquisition activity. Typical clients include small and medium sized privately held companies. He strives to understand the details of his clients' business operations, so he can produce legal solutions that are practical and aligned with the clients' concerns. The respected legal directory Chambers USA quotes clients who have said about Scott that he "is always prompt in his responses and creative in his solutions." He strives to provide his clients with "win-win" solutions to help them achieve their business goals in a practical and cost-efficient manner. He takes a practical approach, and does not let legal principles eclipse the client's business realities.

Almost every business strategy and transaction has tax implications. Scott advises clients on such implications to help them make the best decisions for their business. Scott's expertise in the tax area was gained by obtaining a Masters of Law degree in taxation.

When he is not helping clients, Scott enjoys taking advantage of all the outdoor activities New Hampshire offers, mountain biking in the summer and skiing in the winter, and hiking year round. Scott is a member of the Appalachian Mountain Club 4000 Footer Club, working on his Winter 4000 Footers.
