

Environment & Energy

The attorneys within the Environment & Energy Group at Sheehan Phinney represent businesses concerned with air, water, wetlands, shoreland protection and solid and hazardous waste permitting and compliance. Our experienced team has also worked on numerous cases involving energy facility issues, as well as occupational safety and health matters at the federal, state and local levels of government. For the general benefit of all of the firm's clients, group members maintain a sound working relationship with state regulators and often participate, with the New Hampshire Business and Industry Association, in assisting the State Department of Environmental Services in drafting revised and new environmental regulations. Our attorneys also have extensive experience in addressing matters before the state's Public Utilities Commission and other state agencies and boards.

Our attorneys have expertly represented a large number of manufacturers, developers, and municipalities—both large and small. We've represented clients in cases of private cost recovery actions, state and federal government enforcement matters, insurance coverage disputes, and multi-party cases.