Technology and Related Commercial Agreements

Benefiting from the fruits of your labor by bringing the same to market, or contracting to utilize the products or technology of others, is typically central to your business success. Our attorneys have substantial experience with regard to various technology agreements and related commercial agreements. We can assist with drafting and negotiation of development agreements, OEM agreements, reseller agreements, distribution agreements, and franchisee agreements, among others. Our attorneys collectively have been involved in drafting and negotiating thousands of agreements over the years. We are able to offer our insight as to critical provisions to include in your agreements, as well as what provisions are unlikely to be regarded as a reasonable, thereby making the process more efficient and productive for you.
